and upstairs and all. as straight as a row of corn. Want to check the closets around before I go. You know, make sure everything is I wanted you to know what happened. (Moves toward front door, but turns back.) Say, I better have a look

Go right ahead. CRANE. (Crosses to his Right.) How thoughtful of you

KATE. (Rises.) Crane!

CRANE. Yes.

where. VERNON. Sure wish I could find them diamonds some-

NON'S Left and gestures frantically up the stairs. CRANE thing.) What are you doing? looks blank. KATE makes a gesture of turning on some-CRANE. (To KATE.) What? (KATE moves up to VER-gives up.) ing down over her. CRANE still looks blank and KATE KATE. Shh! (Then she makes a gesture of water com-shower. dinner we play games. Vernon, if you'll excuse me a minute, I'll check on Mr. Hammond. (As she goes upstairs.) Don't want to give him a heart attack in the makes water splashing gesture again.) Rain-waterholds up four fingers.) Four. (KATE nods, then repeats the turning gesture.) Round? (KATE shakes her head.) Turn? (KATE nods.) Turn on something. Turn on-the- (KATE ascinated. She laughs gaily.) Games! Every night after KATE collapses. Crane notices Vernon who has been (KATE starts washing and dancing around.) Shower! CRANE. (Gets an idea.) How many words? (KATE second finger and winks his right eye.) his head and puts his nose between his right index and this? (He holds his lest index singer straight up behind VERNON. (To KATE.) I'm good at games, too. What's KATE. Sailor on forty-second street?

VERNON. Pontiac makin' a right turn

KATE. Say, that's good.

gettin' along soon JENNY. (Enters.) I'm most near finished now. I'll be the table like they oughta. I'll be back for breakfast. What you both like? one from chair table.) If only people would have coffee at JENNY. (As she collects two cups from sofa table and KATE. Don't forget the coffee cups.

ACT II

KATE. (Moves to above sofa.) Just orange juice and coffee.

JENNY, And?

KATE. That's all.

JENNY. Hardly any use comin' at all.

mornin'. Sunday it's pork chops and sometimes a piecea VERNON. I always have a good hunk of meat in the KATE. (Almost ill.) Just juice and coffee.

now, Verne. Mr. Hammond's still in the shower, but you can check the other rooms. CRANE. (Comes to foot of stairs.) You can come up a private detective somewhere according to what they I called the police in Boston and they said there's already Hammond hear and they said some stool pigeon-is that right, Mrs VERNON. I'll feel better knowin' no one else is here.

CRANE. Perfect.

VERNON. Some stool pigeon told them the fence is here, too. CRANE. (Indicating the stairs.) Shall we? I don't want

VERNON. (Passing CRANE.) Oh, by the by, after I check up here, I'll put that Philip Smith in jail and then to run down the water supply. sure he can protect you case anything happens. He oughta be through his shower by then, no matter how dirty he is I'll come back. I wanna see Mr. Hammond. Want to be

(He goes upstairs.) phone Lillian and tell her I want to borrow-JENNY standing there interested.) that thing for a few CRANE. (Crosses to KATE quickly. Sotto voce.) Kate-

KATE. Roger.

CRANE. Over and out. (She runs upstairs.)

-